Roadblocks Should Be Removed From Nuclear Power Development
Source: National Center for Policy Analysis

> Although President Obama said he'd like to triple the amount of loans the federal government guarantees to jumpstart seven to 10 new nuclear power projects over the next decade, only a fraction of those new nuclear reactors will likely be built, according to a new analysis by the National Center for Policy Analysis (NCPA).
> In 1982 the Nuclear Waste Policy Act was passed to ensure proper long-term storage of nuclear waste, especially for the most problematic waste in the United States, spent fuel rods from nuclear reactors. After 26 years and more than $8 billion, the Energy Department determined Yucca Mountain, Nevada, to be a satisfactory storage place, only to have the Obama administration recently halt all plans of nuclear waste storage.

The e-invoicing chimera

Deutsche Bank Research

No, says author Heike Mai, the electronic invoice will supersede the paper version in the long term, provided that it is accorded the same legal status as the paper document. This supersession will not, however, be total - niches will remain for the paper invoice, for example for billing to countries outside Europe or between small companies. The process will also occur more slowly and trigger fewer modernisations than some optimists currently expect.

- Además del acceso a través de la web, el sistema permite a los clientes corporativos acceder al sistema mediante el API SOAP personalizada a medida del cliente (bajo suscripción anual).

- Resumiendo… "el API SOAP envía todos los datos que puede ver un usuario registrado en Docuteria." Una vez se reciben los datos, depende del programador que se muestren todos o no, y también depende de ellos el diseño.

- Integración automática de los contenidos del portal www.docuteria.es en Bibliotecas Digitales, Portales, Intranets, páginas web…ejemplo, Infobook, la Biblioteca Digital de BBVA

- Ventajas del API SOAP:

Keep your feeds squeaky clean!

- Feedscrub acts as a spam filter for your RSS feeds
- Teach it what you like and don't like
- Protect yourself from information overload!

why use it?

...look familiar?

You went to your favorite sites, you subscribed to their RSS feeds, and now you're getting their content delivered to your reader. You've cut down on hours of aimless surfing and all the good stuff is coming straight to you.

So why do you still need to sift through hundreds of items to find what you actually want to read? Use Feedscrub instead to sift through and find the good stuff!

how does it work?

Feedscrub filters your feeds based on your preferences. Subscribe to all your favorite feeds, then tell Feedscrub which posts you do and don't like. Feedscrub will learn your preferences and begin filtering out posts that don't interest you.

Our filter is very similar to email spam filters, so it learns what you like based on the words in each post. If you don't like a post, simply "scrub" it. The more posts you "scrub" and "save", the smarter your filter will get.

The Calais initiative is about enabling semantic applications by providing a metadata generation web service, sample applications using that service to jumpstart development efforts, and support for developers.

The Calais Web Service

The Calais web service automatically attaches rich semantic metadata to the content you submit. Using natural language processing, machine learning and other methods, Calais categorizes and links your document with entities (people, places, organizations, etc.), facts (person "x" works for company "y"), and events (person "z" was appointed chairman of company "y" on date "x").

Pakistan Is Rapidly Adding Nuclear Arms, U.S. Says

WASHINGTON — Members of Congress have been told in confidential briefings that Pakistan is rapidly adding to its nuclear arsenal even while racked by insurgency, raising questions on Capitol Hill about whether billions of dollars in proposed military aid might be diverted to Pakistan's nuclear program.

Adm. Mike Mullen, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, confirmed the assessment of the expanded arsenal in a one-word answer to a question on Thursday in the midst of lengthy Senate testimony. Sitting beside Defense Secretary Robert M. Gates, he was asked whether he had seen evidence of an increase in the size of the Pakistani nuclear arsenal.

"Yes," he said quickly, adding nothing, clearly cognizant of Pakistan's sensitivity to any discussion about the country's nuclear strategy or security.

Inside the Obama administration, some officials say, Pakistan's drive to spend heavily on new nuclear arms has been a source of growing concern, because the country is producing more nuclear material at a time when Washington is increasingly focused on trying to assure the security of an arsenal of 80 to 100 weapons so that they will never fall into the hands of Islamic insurgents.

Pakistan Is Rapidly Adding Nuclear Arms, U.S. Says

WASHINGTON — Members of Congress have been told in confidential briefings that Pakistan is rapidly adding to its nuclear arsenal even while racked by insurgency, raising questions on Capitol Hill about whether billions of dollars in proposed military aid might be diverted to Pakistan's nuclear program.

Adm. Mike Mullen, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, confirmed the assessment of the expanded arsenal in a one-word answer to a question on Thursday in the midst of lengthy Senate testimony. Sitting beside Defense Secretary Robert M. Gates, he was asked whether he had seen evidence of an increase in the size of the Pakistani nuclear arsenal.

"Yes," he said quickly, adding nothing, clearly cognizant of Pakistan's sensitivity to any discussion about the country's nuclear strategy or security.

The administration's effort is complicated by the fact that Pakistan is producing an unknown amount of new bomb-grade uranium and, once a series of new reactors is completed, bomb-grade plutonium for a new generation of weapons. President Obama has called for passage of a treaty that would stop all nations from producing more fissile material — the hardest part of making a nuclear weapon — but so far has said nothing in public about Pakistan's activities.

Bruce Riedel, the Brookings Institution scholar who served as the co-author of Mr. Obama's review of Afghanistan-Pakistan strategy, reflected the administration's concern in a recent interview, saying that Pakistan "has more terrorists per square mile than anyplace else on earth, and it has a nuclear weapons program that is growing faster than anyplace else on earth."

Obama administration officials said that they had communicated to Congress that their intent was to assure that military aid to Pakistan was directed toward counterterrorism and not diverted. But Admiral Mullen's public confirmation that the arsenal is increasing — a view widely held in both classified and
